How did the Fund perform last year?

- For the reporting period ended July 31, 2025, the Fund returned 12.74%.
- For the same period, the MSCI All Country World Index (Net) returned 15.87% and the Bloomberg U.S. Universal Index returned 4.00%.

What contributed to performance?

U.S. large-capitalization equities were the largest contributor to the Fund’s return during the reporting period. In particular, semiconductor stocks gained amid continued demand for artificial intelligence (“AI”) and generative AI workloads in data centers, while systems software firms benefited from strong growth in their respective cloud businesses and increasing adoption of AI technologies. International developed stocks also contributed. German stocks were driven by strong corporate earnings and optimism surrounding a historic fiscal stimulus plan targeting infrastructure and defense, which supported firms in the industrials space. Emerging-market equities also contributed, especially Chinese stocks, which benefited from the country’s historic stimulus packages; the country’s interactive media and services stocks were supported by AI powered innovation and investments.

What detracted from performance?

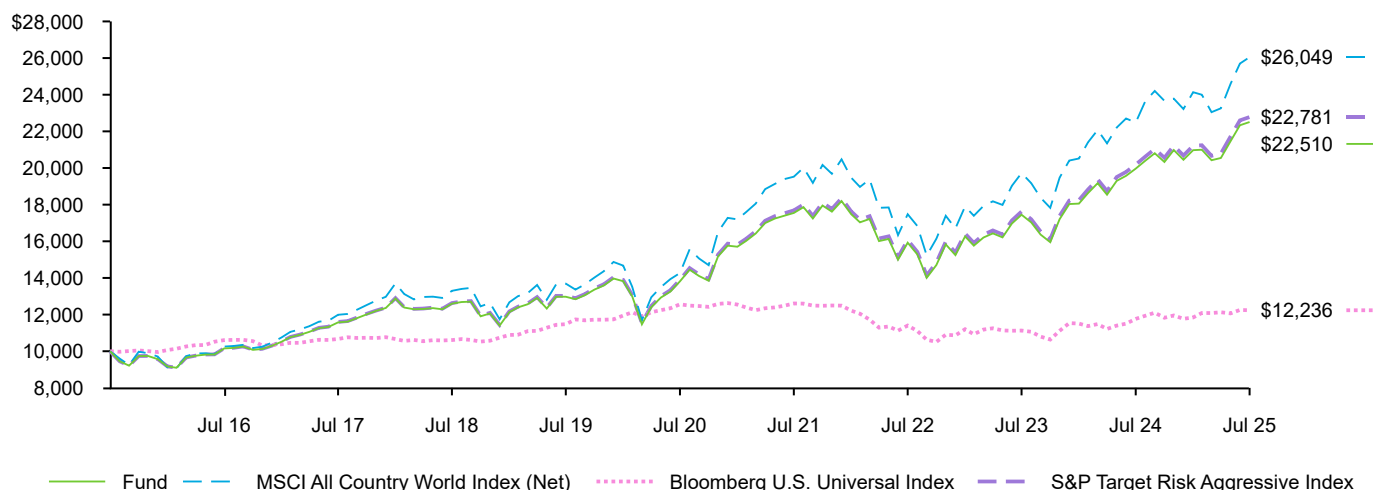

During the reporting period, there were no meaningful detractors from the Fund’s return.
