What were the Fund costs for the last year?

(based on a hypothetical $10,000 investment)

Fund name	Costs of a $10,000 investment	Costs paid as a percentage of a $10,000 investment
iShares J.P. Morgan Broad USD Emerging Markets Bond ETF	$19	0.18%

How did the Fund perform last year?

- For the reporting period ended October 31, 2025, the Fund returned 10.42%.
- For the same period, the J.P. Morgan EMBI Global Diversified Index returned 12.76% and the J.P. Morgan EM Sovereign and Corporate Credit Core Index returned 10.56%.

What contributed to performance?

Despite geopolitical tensions and tariff uncertainty, emerging market bonds gained during the reporting period, supported by a weaker U.S. dollar and U.S. Federal Reserve rate cuts. After cutting rates in December of 2024, the U.S. central bank held policy rates steady through the first part of the year, before cutting rates by 25 basis points in both September and October 2025 as evidence of a cooling labor market outweighed persistent, though elevated, inflation concerns. U.S. dollar-denominated emerging market debt is sensitive to rate changes in the United States, as many of these countries borrow in U.S. dollars and must repay the principal and interest in U.S. dollars. Sovereign debt contributed to returns, followed by corporate bonds. Across emerging markets, all regions gained, with Latin America contributing the most to the Fund’s return. Notably, Mexican debt benefited from subdued inflation during the reporting period. Asia bloc bonds also supported performance. Longer-term duration bonds, those over ten years, supported returns, followed by intermediate maturity bonds. While bonds of all credit ratings delivered positive performance, investment-grade bonds rated Baa by Moody’s had the most positive impact.

What detracted from performance?

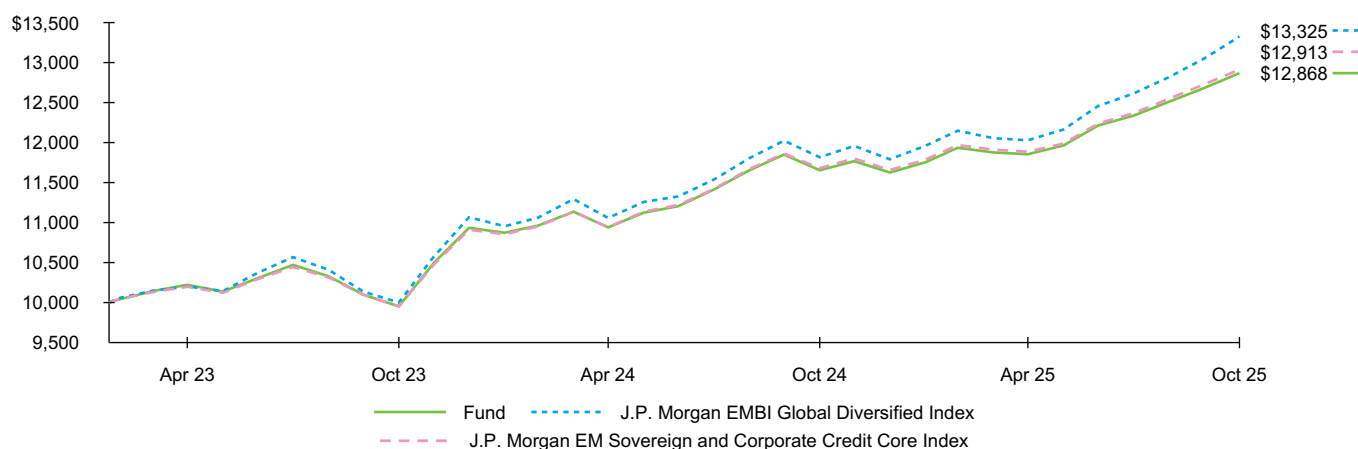

There were no detractors from the Fund’s return during the reporting period.
