What contributed to performance?

Chinese equities were the largest contributors to the Fund’s return during the reporting period. While tariff tensions increased volatility, equities were supported by government stimulus and improved investor sentiment. In the financials sector, diversified Chinese banks benefited from the country’s historic stimulus efforts, which included capital injections and other active interventions to support the banking sector. Insurance companies were driven by a rising stock market, supportive regulatory policies, and favorable demographic trends. Stocks in Taiwan also contributed to performance, most notably in the information technology sector. A major semiconductor supplier was supported by surging demand for artificial intelligence chips and continued innovation, despite the threat of tariffs. In South Korea, diversified banks gained as corporate reforms boosted investor confidence.

What detracted from performance?

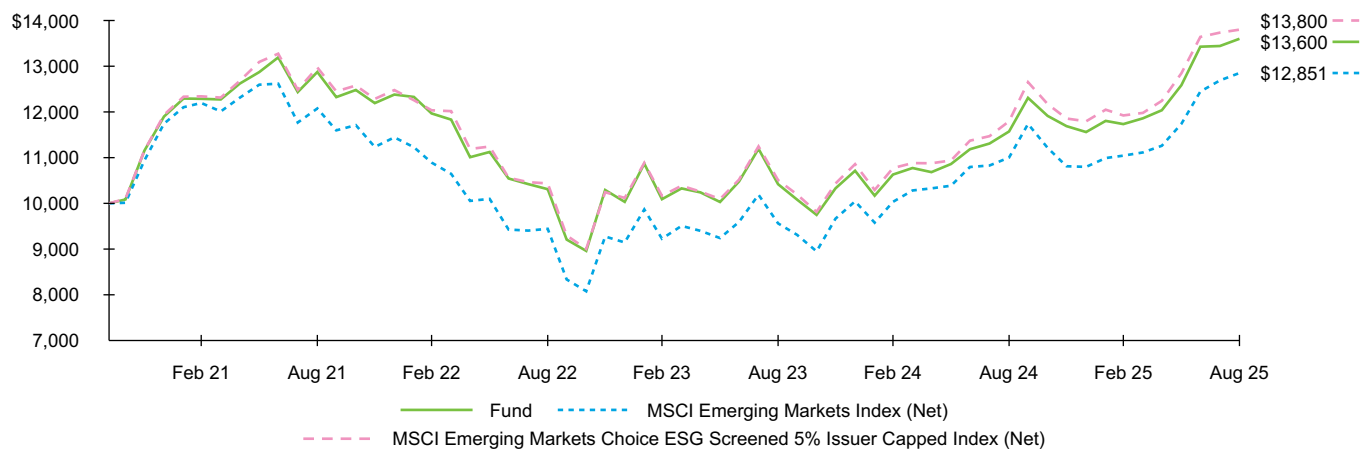

Indian stocks detracted from the Fund’s return during the reporting period. Equities declined due to investor caution and selling pressure stemming from slowing earnings growth, stretched valuations, and global headwinds.
