How did the Fund perform last year?

- For the reporting period ended October 31, 2025, the Fund returned 7.90%.
- For the same period, the Bloomberg U.S. Universal Index returned 6.51% and the Bloomberg December 2031 Maturity Corporate Index returned 7.98%.

What contributed to performance?

Anticipation of rate cuts caused spreads (the difference in the yield between two bonds with similar maturities but different credit qualities) on corporate debt to significantly narrow during the reporting period. Mixed economic signals and ongoing global trade tensions also influenced bond returns, while the late-period U.S. government shutdown added to market volatility. After cutting rates in December of 2024, the Federal Reserve held policy rates steady through the first part of the year, before cutting rates by 25 basis points in both September and October 2025 as evidence of a cooling labor market outweighed persistent, though elevated, inflation concerns.

During the reporting period the Corporate Term Funds benefited from tighter corporate credit spreads. Even though spreads widened briefly during the volatility in April, they remained near historic lows. From a sector standpoint, positions in consumer non-cyclical and technology issuers within the industrials sector helped performance, as did holdings in banking issuers within the financials sector.

What detracted from performance?

There were no notable detractors from the Fund’s performance during the reporting period.
