How did the Fund perform last year?

- For the reporting period ended July 31, 2025, the Fund returned 9.78%.
- For the same period, the S&P 500[®] Index returned 16.33%.

What contributed to performance?

The Fund accomplished its goal of delivering upside performance to the cap in line with the index, as well as protecting against the majority of the losses for the index during times of market weakness.

What detracted from performance?

As designed, the Fund underperformed during periods of strong equity returns and provided a measure of downside protection when equities moved lower in early 2025. The Fund used derivatives, such as options and futures contracts, during the period.

Material fund changes

This is a summary of certain changes to the Fund since July 31, 2024. For more complete information, you may review the Fund's next prospectus, which we expect to be available approximately 120 days after July 31, 2025 at blackrock.com/fundreports or upon request by contacting us at 1-800-iShares (1-800-474-2737).

On July 11, 2025, the Fund's Board approved a change in the name of the Fund to iShares Large Cap Deep Quarterly Laddered ETF. The investment objective of the Fund will change to seek to track the share price return of the iShares Core S&P 500 ETF (the "Underlying ETF") up to an approximate upside limit, while seeking to provide downside protection. In connection with the Fund's name change, the Fund's investment strategy will change to seek to obtain downside protection by employing a "laddered" strategy pursuant to which it buys and sells approximately three-month FLEX Options or other exchange-traded options with overlapping expiration dates. These changes are expected to become effective on or about October 1, 2025.
