What contributed to performance?

U.S. equities advanced during the reporting period, supported by resilient economic growth and sustained investor enthusiasm for artificial intelligence (“AI”) related companies. However, volatility resurfaced later in the period as renewed geopolitical tensions in the Middle East increased investor uncertainty and contributed to higher energy prices. Companies in the industrials sector were the largest contributors to the Fund’s return. The industrials sector advanced due to commercial aircraft upgrades, infrastructure spending, and record U.S. defense budgets amid geopolitical tensions. Technology hardware and equipment companies in the information technology sector were supported by demand for networking equipment and optical components needed for AI infrastructure and cloud workloads. Elevated oil prices amid geopolitical risks drove energy names higher.

What detracted from performance?

During the reporting period, software and services stocks detracted from the Fund’s return, amid growing investor concerns over AI tools disrupting the revenue streams of traditional software models.
